THEY CAME, WE SAW AND THEY CONQUERED— STANFORD!

To the satisfaction of some people at least, the question as to who discovered modern Carmel is settled. It was Dr. David Starr Jordan, we are told, who turned the trick in 1892—just twenty years ago.

Be that as it may, we have been discovered again. A bunch of Stanford students, about thirty of them, banded together as the Stanford Glee Club, invaded our fair city last Saturday afternoon and remained with us until Sunday evening.

Weeks ago they had listened to the siren story of one Hal Bragg, who in words soft and alluring related the wonders of Carmel—how the natives would fall for their music and their stunts.

Veni vidi vici.

Led by their manager, Bradley Wyatt, the first port of call upon the arrival of the boys was the Pine Cone office, where they spread their baggage all over the scenery, and registered. After that, luncheon; and after that, through the courtesy of the Bashams, who tendered the use of the bath house, a swim in the briny.

The boys will always remember the kindness of those Carmelenos who took them in. They are grateful for the substantial home cooking and the motherly tucking in. Not a boy but who ate and slept under a home roof.

Those undergraduates, led by our old friend, Warren D. Allen, certainly can make some music and do some stunts. They kept Arts and Crafts Hall, packed to the doors, reverberating with laughter and applause for two hours.

And those boys can dance, too. The thoughts of many a Carmel young lady are in Stanford today, because it was from that academic shrine whence came the male of the species.

MOTHER OF CARMEL COMPOSER PASSES

The mother of Thos. Vincent Cator, Mrs. Anna V. H. T. Hervey, passed away in her New York home on the 17th of this month.

Mrs. Hervey was the daughter of General A. W. Adams, who commanded Custer's New York cavalry regiment during the last two years of the Civil war. Her mother was a Van Buren. She was a pianist of rare ability, but never desired to appear professionally.

The funeral services were beautiful and impressive, being conducted jointly by the Swedenborgian Church and the Masons, she being a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Deceased leaves a husband, William Russell Hervey, and four children—Marie Wardell, Eleanor V. V. Brewster, Wilma Hervey and Thos. Vincent Cator.

The Chief of the Freeport, Illinois, Fire Department says: "We put out Combination truck in service about a year ago and since then have answered 366 calls with it—it is so much lighter, faster and more economical than the other apparatus that we would be lost without it. Before long we are going to have some more of the same model in service in our Department."

who guided her through the maze of the classic one step and the heavenly waltz. "Home, Sweet Home" came all too soon. But it was the end of a perfect day.

A good night's rest and a wholesome breakfast prepared the young men for the Sunday ride and picnic at Point Lobos which had been arranged for them. Anyone at that affair who was bored is a fit specimen for the Smithsonian Institution. If the club was good in a formal performance, good with several strong adjectives will apply to their informal entertainment, such as they gave at Point Lobos.

As the result of the affair at Arts and Crafts Hall, Hal Bragg will be enabled to hand over to the Little Theatre a substantial sum. At a boy. The club will come again—soon.

Art Exhibit

Etchings, wood blocks and prints are on exhibition at Arts and Crafts Hall. This exhibition is furnished by the Print Society of California and is a revelation of the importance of this line of work. No admission is charged and the exhibit will not close until April 20. It is open on Saturday, Sunday and Monday afternoons from 3 to 5 o'clock, and in the mornings from 10 to 12 the other days of the week. This arrangement is made to avoid interference with the Portia Mansfield dancing classes.

Cornelius Botke, De Neale Morgan, and George J. Seidenbeck constitute the "handing" committee. Some of the most noted people in the country are exhibiting, among them Heinzelman, Ralph Pierson of Taos, N. M.,

Howell C. Brown of Pasadena, secretary of the Print Society, and Gustaf Bauman, noted for his color wood blocks.

It is the desire on the part of the local artists to start a campaign to assist the club in obtaining funds to purchase an etching press. With access to such a machine much in way of development of this branch of art might be accomplished.

This an excellent opportunity for some public spirited citizen to supply the artists of Carmel with this much-needed piece of apparatus.

Little Theater Plans

A meeting of the dramatic section of Arts and Crafts was held last Sunday night for the purpose of making a report to the full membership of the work accomplished. There was much discussion as to the details of organization and many points were made clear. Plans for the future were also discussed and a committee appointed to give a first reading of plays submitted.

Perry Newberry made a report on the plans for the coming May-day festival and requested the cooperation of all members in making it an artistic and financial success.

On Monday evening the Arts and Crafts held a special meeting to consider and adopt the report of the finance and holding committee, which consists of Dr. H. W. Fenner, W. T. Kibbler, Mrs. L. T. Shipley and P. K. Gordon. This committee, through Mrs. Shipley and Mrs. Gordon, sold in little more than two days ninety-six shares of stock at $10 a share, and it was then decided to hold the remaining four shares for members who might wish to secure them. A vote of thanks was given these ladies for their enthusiastic and successful work in behalf of the Little Theater.

Singers Progressing

The Choral Society is gradually taking the "fix" on of "Crucifixion," and Thomas Patience Cator has succeeded in producing some harmonies from his new organization of vocalists. With the extra rehearsals planned for the next two weeks the coming performance will undoubtedly be cleverly presented.

Boys' Clubs

The boys' clubs have some interesting events in the near future. Joseph Moreau & give another story-telling evening. Dr. Burton will give an illustrated talk on his Sumatra trip, and G. F. Beardsley is preparing slides for an Hawaiian lecture.

The Junior Club will hold its election next Wednesday for officers to serve for three months.

Still Reading Dickens

The first reading of Barnaby Rudge will take place next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The Reading Circle is open to everyone, and visitors are always welcome.

Books, pamphlets, programs, business forms, are printed by the Pine Cone Press.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

PEOPLE come and people go from Carmel. Sometimes the joy of a friendship is tempered by the imminence of the parting. Something of the buoyancy felt when the sun suddenly breaks through a gray sky was produced when Miss Helen Rosenkranz and Miss Eleanor Abercrombie first came vacationing to us. These ladies have made many friends during their stay here, and now that they are leaving us it is fitting that we should, in the name of these friends as well as ourselves, wish them bon voyage, and a speedy return.

Miss Rosenkranz is the editor and publisher of the Chippewa Valley Magazine of Eau Claire, Wisconsin. The publication is devoted to the agricultural and commercial interests of that valley and is interesting and altogether unique. She, like her friend, Miss Abercrombie, is witty, hospitable, and in her nature is a generous supply of that "milk of human kindness," which she speaks of in the following article, which we have asked her to write for the Pine Cone. Goodbye, dear ladies. If you remember us as long or as pleasantly as we shall remember you, the few weeks you have spent with us will not have been altogether wasted out of your busy lives.

By HELEN ROSENKRANZ

There is a dog on Ocean Avenue that turns away his head and looks bored every time I pass, otherwise, every inhabitant of Carmel has accorded me a smile of welcome.

Now I am going to leave it all. The high boots are being wrapped in rose leaves, and the walking stick in lavender, for where I have been, the exclusive prerogative of the male—and he only dons them when going forth to kill, either his brother under the name of war, or his half-brother of the forest, under the name of sport—and as for the stick, if I should carry a cane in the home town, they would ask if I had rheumatism.

Carmel has been given many interesting appellations; it is not for me to attempt to add to this list; sufficient for me to set down a few of my "impressions", and let you clever ones affix the name.

Carmel will always mean to me the sea; the great changing, restless ocean with its waves roaring, and tossing, and churning, and sparkling in the sun, or glistening under the radiance of the silvery moon; or, again, just the conventional "deep, deep, blue sea". Carmel will mean stretches of snow-white dunes where wave after wave, with no question as to results, patiently follow its appointed task of rolling in thus far and no farther. Or, perhaps, the picture will shift to some headland of jagged rock around whose base the mighty waters rave ceaselessly—so reminiscent of the wrath of man in its senseless fury against what it is pleased to call Fate.

And while we have watched the splashing Pacific, while we have dreamed and wandered, steamers far out to sea plying between gay ports, with gay people in gay salons have crossed the far horizon; whales—yes sir, regular whales—have come up spouting almost within hail, sea gulls have circled around our heads, and on rocky heights far, far above us gay people have chatted and sung and danced and feasted on the setting sun, the rising moon and the changing hues of sea and sky—all of which glory has no whit dulled their appetites for crab, abalone, and even for turkey, cranberry sauce and ice-cream.

In Carmel, too, we have learned something of artists that we did not know before. Some clever, or would-be clever, person has said that the human race may be divided into men, women and temors. No such classification can be applied to artists. They seem to be mostly men and women of like passions with ourselves: they eat, drink, are sad, merry, or just drably anxious as to the whereabouts of the next month's rent money. They wear black coats, smocks, fillets, pointed beards, curls, baldheads, corduroys, windsor ties, or merely the prevailing mode in male and female attire. The only difference between them and others is that they have something to do and they want time and opportunity to do it.

And the things they do! And the pictures they paint! Which are, after all, not merely pictures of wind-swept cypresses on rock-bound shores, they are wind-swept trees blown by tempestuous winds, and on those wondrous canvases I seem to see the great soul of the artist swept, perhaps, by the winds of adversity, yet holding its ground and growing more massive, more noble as it resists each passing gale. In these paintings of rock-bound shores I see splendid lives against whose adamantine spirits sorrow and despair beat but in vain. Storms may come, billows may foam, yet the great soul is left more noble, more splendid.

Carmel can furnish other pictures, too. There is that wonderful Ocean Avenue with its artistically unconventional bit of pavement, which causes me to wonder if painters couldn't paint just as well, or writers couldn't write just as convincingly if they ran less risk of breaking their necks from a loose plank in the sidewalk, or of taking off a wheel on the roadway. Not that I care—I love it anyway—but it is merely one of my "impressions".

On the Boulevard there is Mine Host, so genial, so undisturbed with the "cares that beset the day", for is he not living with History? Does the telephone annoy? It is not for long, he is soon back with Cyrus King of Tyre. Must he return to the present to call "Front"? He can immediately sink back into the glories of Solomon's Temple. Yea, verily! The past provides a softer cushion for the weary head than ever doth the fretful Present.

Then, there is the dear little "L'Accommodation", where we bought thread, shoes, blouse, hats, hose and what not. Truly a very great accommodation!

While on the Avenue de l'Ocean can one overlook the Pine Cone office? Rather not, when we find that their printer's ink is mixed with the milk of human kindness and they handle music, poetry and the drama with as much intimacy as the ordinary editor does a presidential possibility or a galley proof. There is much more that might be said of the Pine Cone, but Carmelites understand and appreciate it all—or will after these tireless workers for Carmel's good are dead and gone—which, you must acknowledge will be a splendid reward for their labors.

Then, in Carmel there is always the thrill of knowing that each passer-by is a potential celebrity. Poets, painters, sculptors, musicians, actors, diplomats and scientists of renown block the way. They are all there, or at least their next. To be sure I didn't meet President Harding, but—Goodness! Gracious!—I saw his double, the one who represents him in the movies. Lonna! Why, they simply roar all over the place, drowning the voice of the sea, and the literary lights dim the sun. Indeed, the flat-Eve Post might be said to be "Made in Carmel"—Ma Pettingill is everything.

Yes, Carmel can furnish sights a-plenty, and with Byron one can almost chant:

"The world has lost its gloss for us
Since we went boating on the Bosporus".

Only it is the Carmel Coast, and not the Golden Horn that has intrigued us. And, weaving in and out, making it all one splendid human fabric, is always the kindly word, the friendly smile, the Carmel Spirit.

What affair is it of mine if in Carmel are the Delightfully Detached, the Successfully Separated, or the Multi-married? Their household cares are not my concern. I only know that here milk is cheaper, oranges more expensive, hearts are lighter and people fatter than otherwheres, and with it all I believe values are truer in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

But everybody does not like it as well as I do, for napping in a sheltered spot out on the Dunes one day, with the blue, blue ocean rolling its white surf at my feet and the sea gulls flapping above me, with half closed eyes shaded by the hat that had fallen over my nose I was watching the afternoon sun glow its way across the Pacific on its daily tour to China, when a whiff of tobacco brought me back to earth. Looking up I saw that a plainly dressed man and woman had broken in upon my delightful solitude.

With the friendly spirit that the California air seems to engender the woman opened the conversation with, "You like to watch the ocean?"

I assured her that it was not by way of penance for my sins that I was gazing at the wondrous sun path across the sea.

Thirst for knowledge still goading her my friend inquired further, "You like California?" Then, lest replying should cause embarrassment she added, "I wouldn't live here if they would give me the whole state of California", and added with pride, almost with arrogance, "I LIVE IN KANSAS!"

Poor bleeding Kansas! Even Kansas! The state of the grasshopper and the sunflower! We never know until we meet it the heart's loyalty to Home. At that moment, in spite of the warm white sunshine and the music of the rolling Pacific—sights and sounds that dwarf the rest of the world—if I had heard a bar of "On Wisconsin", my heart would have risen with a swell that would have rivalled the waves, and my voice would have burst forth into "Home Sweet Home" with a roar that would have challenged the sea.

When Is a "Squatter?"

By JACK WILLIAMSON

Like C. O. Goold, I had no intention of getting mixed up in this argument, but the temptation was too great and here I am, although I happen to be on the wrong side of the fence, as Mr. Goold seems to define the fence. Really, I can't see why he did not call the little band of people he depends upon to support his stage business sheepherders, for that is a little worse than "squatters."

Mr. Goold's argument was very convincing, so much so, in fact, that if he will only consent to write just one more like it Perry Newberry will be elected by an overwhelming majority. Judging from the number of toes he managed to step on in the two columns of valuable space devoted to his "Food for Reflection," he must have walked through our midst a la centipede.

So B. W. Adams will probably quit volunteering on our little department unless he is given a $6000 fire engine to play with. I am going to write Santa Claus a letter this very night in an effort to avert such a catastrophe. However, that is the best argument I have heard so far in favor of the fire engine.

This masterpiece of six cylinder engineering Mr. Goold speaks of must be a wonder. I firmly believe it would be worth $6000 to the people of Carmel just to get a look at it. If it ever made a hurry run over the alleged street passing my place and didn't break a leg, I would be willing to contribute generously toward having its hide stuffed and mounting it at the top of the ornate marble steps leading into the city hall that is destined to put King City to shame. The stuffing and mounting, of course, would take place after its natural demise thirty years hence.

I may be a "squatter," but you've got to hand it to me for being progressive. I think it would be a shame to stop at a city hall with a gilded dome and a $6000 limousine for our firemen when our lion-hearted guardian of law and order, August Englund, is expected to ride about town on a horse. Just think of it! Even my Encyclopaedia Britannica doesn't attempt to say how ancient this means of travel is. Just think of how much more territory he could cover in an aeroplane! Some of these days he and his horse are going to fall into a washout on one of our alleged streets and we will have to float another issue of bonds to procure a new outfit.

While we are chasing mortgages and keeping our eye on the future, let's make a good job of it. Why not put in a couple of subways at each intersection of Ocean avenue for the use of timid pedestrians? Think of the expense the city would be put to in supplying traffic cops at these busy crossings when Carmel becomes a second King City. One can never tell, though, for by that time the coyotes may have apartments in our $14,000 city hall and the sparrows will be building nests in our $6000 limousine.

Mr. Goold seems to resent the fact that the squatters are doing their work in Carmel and sending their stuff away to sell it. During the past year I have spent nearly as much for postage in an effort to keep my stuff out of Carmel as I have for paying Ocean avenue but I had no intention of offending anyone. I have a couple of perfectly good stories tucked away in my desk right now that I will be willing to sell to Mr. Goold at reduced rates, just to show him that my heart is in the right place.

I can't blame the business men for wanting the $6000 squirt gun. After Ocean avenue is paved it would stand a good chance of getting to their places of business in a hurry and still have a couple of acrobatic firemen clinging to it when it arrived. To be sure they are willing to pay their part of it—just like they did for taking the

By PERRY NEWBERRY

This is from one of the "Squatters." When I first came to Carmel, Mr. Goold operated a livery stable and horse stage line to Monterey. There were quite a number of us "Squatters," artists and writers, who paid our money to him through twelve months in the year. Nine months out of the twelve we were quite an important item in Mr. Goold's business, and we never asked Mr. Goold—or other business men of Carmel—to reciprocate in a business way. We did not ask him to buy our stories or our paintings.

And we "Squatters" were ready always to work for Carmel, with plays and pageants that gave the town thousands of dollars of advertising; with our paintings of our scenic beauties which have brought more people to know, love, and live in Carmel; than all the stage lines in the world ever could. And we sold our products out of town—back East, most of us—and spent our money here, without thought that Mr. Goold—and perhaps other business men of Carmel—believed us undesirable citizens.

Years have passed. During them we have been loyal to the town and its business men and Mr. Goold. We "Squatters" have been the one permanent thing about Carmel. More have come—artists, writers, musicians—from all parts of the country, all parts of the world, and with them have come those who have the liking for such association; and the leisure to establish themselves among such surroundings. There have been inducements by adjoining property owners made to many of the "Squatters" to entice them away: Pebble Beach set aside a tract, made great concessions in price, to attract these "undesirables" of Carmel; Lagoon Beach sends advertising each week to many of the artists and writers here. But the "Squatters" are a loyal group, loyal to the town of their choice, its businesses and institutions.

It is with sadness that we now learn that we "are only in the way of anything helpful to the community in general," as he so bitterly phrases it; that we are "merely squatters who do their work here and market their products elsewhere"—such an unfriendly thing to do to the town! Sell in New York, to spend the money in Carmel. And we wonder if there are other business men here who agree with Mr. Goold. Let's hear from the business men and women of Carmel. The town as a whole can speak at the polls on election day. But we "Squatters" would like to hear frankly from the business people as to their agreement or lack of it with Mr. Goold's expression of contempt.

waves out of Ocean avenue. Incidentally, I am contributing six cents to one firm's assessment every time I buy a pound of Nueca.

Yours for the squirt gun and mortgages.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO ADVERTISERS

On and after May 1st, 1922, the rates for display advertising in the Pine Cone will be $5.00 per inch.

The cost of production, together with the increased circulation and quality of the paper, and the necessary additional equipment has made the above change imperative.

Six months ago much of the Pine Cone was syndicate matter; today we are putting out a paper filled with live news; new departments are constantly being created and a new interest on the part of our readers is being manifested. This all entails more expense in the production—labor, equipment, stock, office help—and if the Pine Cone is going to continue to serve the people effectively, substantial recognition must be made of its value as an Advertising medium.

We believe that our Advertisers are fully aware of the value of Pine Cone space and that they will be glad to continue at the new rates. We take this opportunity of thanking them in advance for their continued patronage and we assure the general public as well as our Advertisers that it will be our constant endeavor to supply our readers with the best and most valuable advertising medium to be found in the County.

AUTHORSHIP DE-NYED

Let us try to clear up one or two misunderstandings.

The article published in the Pine Cone two weeks ago against the bond issue, and so ably handled by Harry S. Nye, has been erroneously credited by some to Herbert E. Nye of the Pine Cone staff, and this paper has been accused of being "on the fence."

We are willing to give all arguments for and against the bonds, and all the publicity possible to both sides, but we have stated just as emphatically as our limited vocabulary will permit that WE ARE FOR THE BONDS, and might add that we should like to see the matter settled now, once for all, though the printer's profit would be very materially increased should the matter keep coming up from time to time in the future.

It is not the desire of the publishers of this paper to try to influence the popular vote by misinformation, distortion or suppression of facts; we wish only to make clear the facts and then trust an intelligent electorate to express itself freely and without bias.

There are still a few points which have evidently not been made clear, either by the "pros" or by the "antis," and one of them is the supply of water and its relation to the question at issue. The implication has been made that the proposed fire apparatus is dependent on the amount of water for its efficiency. The facts as we understand them are these. We have ten hydrants and they are all on a six-inch main, and that pipe is all good and sound and will probably outlast any of us. Now, that is certainly good water supply, isn't it? But the PRESURE is low in these pipes as well as in those all over town, and that's where the Booster pump comes in.

Our ten hydrants cover Ocean Avenue to Monte Verde and Monte Verde to Eighth. A fire machine with plenty of hose, (and the proposed apparatus carries one thousand feet), that can furnish the pressure, can draw from this six-inch main all the water that is necessary to completely cover the business district, and many blocks of the residence district as well. We have water; what we want is pressure and the proposed new apparatus furnishes that. Now, it is quite true that there are parts of the town which are unprotected by hydrants or the reach of the hose from the hydrants and it is also true that there are leaky old two-inch water pipes in some of those sections, but if we can protect the greater part of the town now, we'll certainly be in a stronger position to demand increased service, both public and domestic, from the water company, and if that should fail, we still have the Railroad Commission as a court of next resort. The way to get things done for us by public service corporations is to take advantage of what we already have. Of course we need sewers and storm gutters and lots of other things, but let's start in with the fire and water situation and the rest will come more quickly than if we sit back placidly waiting for "George to do it."

The Pine Cone's honesty and sincerity is questioned. We are standing for fair play in this as well as in other controversies on community interests. We have placed ourselves on record as being in favor of the Bond issue, and we have then turned the paper over to the opponents, because we believe the Pine Cone is a community paper, and we want it to be the medium for free discussion of public matters. Is there a record of any paper that has become an advocate of a certain policy and that has then given to the opponents of that policy unlimited space to try to defeat it? If this isn't "fair play" we certainly don't know the animal when we see it.

And then there is this question of "To boom, or not to boom." If I had a private income sufficient to pay for adequate protection to my life and property, to live with no thought of the future and to do away entirely with the need of any business elements near me, I might not care as to the rise in property valuations, but I'm just one of many people in Carmel—and that's not confined to the business element—who are glad to invest one thousand dollars and make two—and I'd chortle gleefully if I could put away that profit against a rainy day. And I don't know one opponent of the bond issue that hasn't profited by the good times which Carmel has enjoyed ever since the first decent road was started here. The Pine Cone doesn't advocate Sunday excursions to Carmel with greedy real estate providers brass bands and free lunches, but it does advocate a steady "coming up on its own roots," only lets don't confine ourselves to the roots too long, because they have a habit of rotting if not allowed to grow a little.

We don't believe in booms, but we don't see why fire protection and a suitable, unpretentious place to house our records and city activities are going to hurt our reputations as lovers of the "simple life."

James G. Force, principal of the school at Gonzales, has been appointed county superintendent of schools to succeed Mrs. H. Louise Schultzburg. Other candidates for this important position were J. Will Crook of Spreckels, J. A. Walker of Greenfield, Miss Grace Wideman of Gonzales, and Miss Ameda Bottcher of the Spring district.

REAL NECESSITIES

Should we suddenly be deprived of brushes, we would realize what an important place the brush has in the scheme of things. This observation is suggested by a look into the sample case of J. A. Polley, salesman for the Fuller Brush Company, who is now visiting Carmel homes. No one can imagine that there are so many shapes, sizes and varieties of brushes. From the unique tooth brush to the elaborate shower bath brush may be purchased, and prompt delivery is assured.

Editor Pine Cone:

I am living in Carmel now about a half year and my ears are humming and my eyes aching from listening to and reading about the community spirit of this wonderful town. I hear about those good old days, when one's garden was open to the public for a friendly smile, when one's neighbor surprised you in the early morning with home-made bread hot from the oven. The time when Carmel was nothing more than one large family, when the interest of the one was the interest of the other, and how I thrilled with emotion, when a friend told me how in those days a little woman in town wanted to build a house. She had the lot and the lumber, but not the money to build. And one Sunday morning, some men came together, headed by Perry Newberry and built the house in one day. Oh, holy Spirit!

And now we have in town another little woman, a very young one, one who promises to grow up to a beauty and who will bring to us when we see her, the thought, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." But her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arts and Crafts, have not the money to build a house for her and worse, they have not even the lumber. Only the lot.

Come on, Sisters and Brothers Goodwill and Community Spirit, try to get the money. Let the women artists amongst you do the interior decoration, let the practical sisters try to get the money. Let not an afternoon tea or a dance or a meeting pass without a collection for the little lady's house. Come on, children of Carmel, put your small hands to work, painting and sewing. Come on, Perry Newberry, head your troops again, and build the house for the most lovely little woman in town, for Miss "Little Theater".

Carmel, Cal., March 22, 1922.

Editor Pine Cone:

In a recent edition of a San Francisco paper, and in fact, every time it is mentioned in any paper, a location of a certain "million dollar movie" is given as Monterey. In reality it is about 10 miles from Monterey, but adjacent to Carmel—within walking distance. As Carmel was settled just 150 years ago and Monterey somewhat earlier, the claim of priority may be the excuse. A map recently issued by the Southern Pacific Co., and hanging in a railroad station, apparently shows every place in California except Carmel. Many of the places shown, consist of a sign-post or a couple of houses, while this is an incorporated city. Some of the auto road maps do not show it, although it is the terminus of the paved highway and this Carmel is also missing in atlases just published by the leading publishers in this line. The public is entitled to have correct information placed before it.

However, Carmel is growing, and if prejudice doesn't enter into the matter, probably by the year 2050, they will all become aware of its existence.

CONVINCING ARRAY OF FACTS AND FIGURES FOR BOND ISSUE STUDENTS

By B. W. ADAMS

A recent issue of the Pine Cone contained an interesting "Trinity of Protestants", interesting because of the clever way in which some of the protestants sidestepped facts and in the apparent misunderstanding of the true scope of the proposed improvements.

First, a famous authoress indulges sarcastic generalities, and in a flip-pant insinuation regarding the source of the data as to fire equipment.

This insinuation scarcely rises to the dignity of argument, but justice requires that the proper source be credited; the statistics regarding the fire equipment of the various cities were published in a magazine of national circulation, "Fire Service", devoted to problems of fire protection and appealing particularly to members of Fire Departments.

Most of the data was taken from the reports of the Fire Chiefs, rendered at the National Convention of the Fire Chiefs Association held in Atlanta, Georgia, August, 1921, surely an authentic source of information on this subject.

Boston is known to some as the seat of American culture, and to others as the original habitat of the baked bean, but so far as the writer knows no manufacturer of fire apparatus is located in the "blue stocking" city.

Another misapprehension of well established fact is the statement "we are in better shape as to fire than we were in those early days when the town was all in the brush". Since it is conceded by all authorities of fire hazards that at least ninety percent of all fires are of human origin, let us compare the situation of fourteen years ago with existing conditions.

In those remote days, Carmel's winter population was two hundred to two hundred and fifty people, with the summer population running from five hundred to seven hundred. The permanent population at present is estimated at twelve hundred and last summer's estimate was three thousand and at the height of the season. As fire hazards increase in direct ratio to density of population the conclusion is obvious: for that matter we still have large and dangerous brush areas, but it is people, not brush that start fires although brush does intensify the danger when a fire is once started.

Furthermore, the idea that a motor truck carrying fire apparatus could not get to a fire over our streets is daily refuted by the service of commercial trucks to practically every part of Carmel. If a Ford truck loaded with groceries or wood or lumber can reach your house, why not a Ford truck loaded with fire equipment?

Another estimable citizen contents himself with crying, "hot air" and ridiculing the Booster pump. He evidently overlooks the fact that the truck would carry an efficient chemical outfit, extension ladders, axes, and hand chemical, as well as the despised booster pump.

The statement that the booster pump would require an expert for its operation is absolutely wrong; any man or boy who can drive an automobile can drive and operate the apparatus in question.

The third protestant, apparently sincere but misinformed, believes that four more hand chemical engines would afford better protection at one-fifth the cost. Again, let us fall back on facts and figures: hand-drawn chemicals, like the one Carmel now depends on, cost $450 apiece according to the latest catalog at hand; a small building to house the engine and its supply of chemicals would cost close to $100, without the real estate. So let us call the cost for each unit $550, four more would cost $2200; since a complete outfit, mounted on the dependable Ford truck and carrying hose, chemical engine, ladders, axe and pumper can be purchased for as little as $2875, f. o. b. factory, the saving would be insignificant compared with the loss in efficiency because we would still be dragging the "muzzle loading" outfit by hand or else losing valuable time waiting for a truck to tow them, for the hand engine can not be towed behind a touring car. If the gentleman who prefers the hand-drawn chemical engine will come out just once and help drag our present outfit up Ocean Avenue a few blocks, I feel sure he will be speedily converted to the motorized combination.

As to the misunderstanding of the true scope of the project the writer has been surprised to find that many of our citizens seem to think that the entire $6000 proposed for fire protection must all be spent for one booster pump; a careful reading of the resolution will show that part of the proposed appropriation would be spent for an alarm system to be connected to the new fire siren and for other fire fighting accessory equipment. Suitable types of motor pump outfits can be bought for $2875 to $3600, so there should be probably $1200 to be used for the installation of fire alarm boxes, purchase of additional hose and other needed equipment.

In conclusion, the writer would like to ask the following questions, which he does not expect to have answered.

Have any of the citizens, opposing the niggardly sum of $6000 for fire protection of an assessed valuation of $650,000; any actual first hand knowledge of fire hazards?

Have any of them ever identified themselves with our volunteer Fire Department or tried to handle a serious situation with inadequate equipment?

Have any of them any up-to-date information regarding fire apparatus, or its limitations and capabilities?

Do any of our citizens, who are opposed to fire protection, know how much of Carmel could be served by the ten hydrants we now have?

Do they know that with a pumper outfit and one thousand feet of hose, water could be thrown on every business building from the old livery stable on Junipero Street to La Playa Hotel? also on three churches and about 405 residences; all this without a single extra hydrant and pumping from a six-inch main?

Do they know that there are at least ten blocks of water mains in Carmel that are capable of delivering useful fire streams (1½ inch hose) that at present carry no hydrants or fire plugs?

Of course the water service in some sections of Carmel is wretchedly inadequate but is that a good reason for denying full protection to other parts of town where water is available?

Would it not show a better spirit for all of us to get behind a movement to secure improved water service for all of Carmel? In the meantime why not derive the fullest possible protection from the water service we now have?

While it is true that Carmel has only ten fire hydrants at present any one who will take a map of the town and check the location of the hydrants will see that they are so placed as to cover every business building in town; with a suitable pumper and one thousand feet of hose the protected zone would extend from the old livery stable on Junipero on the East to the La Playa Hotel on the West, and besides covering the entire business district would reach about one hundred and fifty residences.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

New Feature

In the Pine Cone of April 6th there will be added to this department a "Review of New Books in the Carmel Library." The reviews will appear from time to time.

Joseph Allan Dunn is an author who has gained the experience necessary for the writing of big stories through having lived them. A newspaperman, magazine editor, cosmopolite, he has been a participator and student of many of the stirring phases of world history during the past three decades. Possessing the equipment of a fiction writer, he did not start to use it until he had a thorough knowledge of the tools, gained from wide practice in preparatory lines. Dunn was born in London, England, in 1872, and began newspaper work in that city after achieving his B. A. at Oxford in 1893. A thorough training on the very thorough journals of his native city made him a good reporter, one capable of judging and marshalling facts in an interesting way. He took up his residence in San Francisco in 1907.

"The Indian Drum" is a wholesome story quite sure to please all lovers of mystery and romance. The Indian legend which involves a superstition, stimulates the imagination without placing a too severe strain upon the credulity. The superstition relating to the drum, weird though it is, arouses no morbid fancies. It is quite in keeping with that charming lore of the Red Man which contains so many quaint imaginings and sees in every fact or mystery of existence, some manifestation of Manitou, the Great Spirit. The incidents and characteristics of the remainder of the tale—the white man's portion of it—are thrilling and highly interesting, but nevertheless, quite logical. It is the work of William Mackarg and Edwin Bulmer.

A book that will interest lovers of the Carmel drama is Thomas Reeve's "The Fair Rewards." It is a story of the American stage from the Frohman's presentation of "The Prisoner of Zenda" at the old Plymouth up to the recent production of "The Jest." Anna Held, James Humecker, Clyde Fitch, Mr. Frohman, and many others appear in this first novel by a distinguished young American writer, whose work in the magazines already made him popular.

There's a resume of Harold MacGrath's latest novel, "The Ragged Edge." It sounds mighty interesting. "She was a girl who had never seen a paved street, a train of cars, a telephone, who had never read a novel, in whose Bible the word Love had been obliterated. Imagine a Bible without Love! The stern South Sea missionary, her father, had obliterated the word Love so that his daughter might never suffer what he had.

And so she runs away from her island one night to find Love; this girl who knew all about beachcombers and nothing about life.

"He was a young man whose object was the beach, the white man's nadir; to get there as soon as he could, where his conscience would no longer trouble him. That he never arrived on the beach was due to meeting this strange girl and the fine inspiration with which she filled him."

STRONG PLEA MADE FOR FIRE APPARATUS

By CALVIN C. HOGLE

There seems to be so many conflicting opinions in regard to the proposed fire equipment for our town and so many statements made which are obviously not founded on facts, that I beg to submit a few figures concerning the present system and a few facts relative to what the present system would accomplish supplemented by the proposed equipment.

At present our fire main consists of a six-inch pipe extending from Junipero Street along Ocean Avenue to Monte Verde Street and along Monte Verde Street from Fifth Avenue to Eighth Avenue. Along this line at street intersections are placed ten fire plugs, which deliver a light flow of water at an average pressure of less than 30 pounds, which is barely sufficient to throw a stream of water onto the roof of a one story building. At some of these plugs the pressure is so low that it is practically all consumed in overcoming the friction in a two-hundred foot length of hose. The present system gives a very inadequate protection to a few houses along Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street.

But from these same fire plugs supplemented by the proposed fire equipment, which includes one thousand feet of three-inch hose, 400 gallons of water per minute could be delivered on any one of 450 different houses at a pressure of 110 pounds per square inch. This amount of water could be delivered at this pressure on any house on Ocean Avenue between Santa Rita Avenue and San Antonio Avenue; on Santa Fe Avenue between 5th Ave. and 7th Ave.; on Torres Avenue between Fifth Avenue and Seventh Avenue; on Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Eighth Avenue; on Mission Street between Fourth Avenue and Eighth Avenue; on San Carlos Street between Fourth Avenue and Ninth Avenue; on Dolores Street between Fourth Avenue and Ninth Avenue; on Lincoln Street between Third Avenue and Tenth Avenue; on Monte Verde Street between Third Avenue and Tenth Avenue; on Cassanova Street between Third Avenue and Tenth Avenue; on Camino Real between Fourth Avenue and Ninth Avenue; on Carmelo Street between Fourth Avenue and Ninth Avenue; and on San Antonio Street between Fourth Avenue and Ninth Avenue.

In other words, it would reach as far east on Ocean Avenue as the Josselyn place and as far west as Mrs. Kluegel's and Mr. Botkie's, as far north on Lincoln as Mrs. Rigney's and as far south on Cassanova as the Norwood Cottage, now owned by Mr. Whitehead.

This gives an adequate water protection to more than one-half of the houses in town and covers most of the closely built district. If the chemical tanks, which are a part of the proposed equipment are not sufficient protection to the rest of the town, I have no doubt the water company could be induced to install a few more fire plugs. Ten more such plugs would cover practically every house within the city limits.

P. S. I am enclosing a map on which I have marked in red that section which would be covered by the proposed system.

GLADIOLAS

No really lovely garden is without gladiolas, either in borders or in masses or reflected in pools. For they combine the stateliness of lilies, the beauties of roses and the hardiness of shrubs. Carmel is particularly adapted to their growth, with light soil, a spring sun and even wind.

We have a hundred dozen healthy two-month-old white and coral gladiola plants which we will sell for two dollars a dozen, or fifteen dollars a hundred. These plants will bloom in June. Box 466, Carmel.

ARE YOUR ELECTRIC LIGHTS SATISFACTORY?

The voltage furnished by the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company in Carmel is 115 volts and this is the kind of lamp which should be used by electric lighting consumers in this territory.

On all standard lamps the voltage is plainly marked on a paper tag glued on the neck of the lamp. If lamps of higher voltage rating are used the light received from them will be dim and unsatisfactory. If lamps of lower voltage rating are used, they will burn out quickly and will not give the length of service to which the customer is entitled.

Any trouble with the electric service should be promptly reported to the district office of the Coast Valleys Gas and Electric Company in Monterey. If this is done, prompt attention will be given by employees of the company and the trouble removed as quickly as possible.

ANOTHER RICHMOND IN THE FIELD

Dear Pine Cone:

One can admire the fine sentiment, and the militant pen with which "The Pine Nut" repudiates the insinuations contained in the Bulletin article, and the firm manner in which the marital argonauts are forbidden, or dissuaded, from these shores. Yet surely these earnest fellows were, in many cases, actuated by a gallant chivalry in proffering themselves and their fortunes, even if one or both were inadequate, to the (presumably) lorne and lonely ladies of our secluded city?

And is it really quite fair to relegate us all to a category contemporaneous with the Dinosaur or the Pterodactyle?

It would be deplorable, if in vindicating the cause of Carmel's knightless maidens, our "ownest own" Pine Cone were to convey the impression to the outside world, that this fair spot was but an animated, fossiliferous museum!

It cannot be said with veracity that the ill-paid undulations of Ocean Avenue, (Ah, how aptly named), have never echoed to the staccato refrain of two-inch, (or over), heels, or that that famous—or infamous—thoroughfare cannot exhibit, on occasion, specimens of youth and beauty which might well charm a more sophisticated eye than that of a "boy" of sixty-eight.

And surely many of our mothers have something more to cherish than a caged canary, or more worthy to caress than a cat?

Who will be narrow-minded enough to deny that along with some real music we tolerate a little jazz? Or that we can be quite festive when the time is appropriate, and give our visitors a square meal, and still have a little left over for the cat?

And we cannot close our eyes to the fact that the little fellow with a tricky bow and arrow need not look in vain for employment in our shady nooks, on our silvery beach or our rolling hills!

Why not invite all who are interested, to "see Carmel first"? They may then see us as we are; to find out that we do not devote all our time to our cats, our canaries, or our gardens, or that our manly musicians are forever cutting wood with a ferocity which forces local wood vendors to eke a precarious trade from the frail "unattached ladies" of our community.

And perchance an earnest enquirer may perceive that our plumbers of times cease from plumbing; that our carpenters suspend anon their nail pounding to study oratorios; and that our mechanics possess imaginations.

We will agree, that anyone who sits long enough with a cool sea breeze blowing in their faces, will be likely to forget the cat and remember—super!

It would be misleading for us to give the impression that we are too archaic to have a garage, a post office and an aggressive force of realtors.

And, in conclusion, we might ask; is there any place on earth where men don't eat, sleep, and drink—when they can get it?

THE BOYS ARE WITH US ONCE MORE

San Pedro, Cal., March 18, 1922.

Dear Pine Nut:

We, the eligible single marines on the Idaho, were quite surprised and with varied thoughts we read your weekly paper, the Pine Cone, when it came to us in this morning's mail.

Thanks for the paper. It gives us a very good idea of what Carmel is and for one thing, we wished to know that. Perhaps someone was just playing a joke on Carmel, and perhaps, as you say, the joke's on us, but let me say here for the benefit of myself and for the other single marines here on this ship, that any party has to stay up late and arise early to put one over on the marines. And furthermore I want to say now that you're stretching a point when you say that.

You know the old saying, "A sailor has a sweetheart in every port." Well, perhaps we had one in every town on the coast and didn't want to slight Carmel. We hadn't heard of your town you know until we read the article in the Bulletin, and again we just felt really sorry for you and wanted to relieve you of some of your anxiety.

We'll forget all that though now. What we want to do is to set ourselves right in your eyes and win an apology from you for some of the things you said and hinted in your article. In the first place; you need never worry about not having enough to feed us marines, not if you have a dozen cats, a dog, and even a goat thrown in for good measure. We believe in being prepared and usually when we go into strange territory we carry a couple of Corned Bill sandwiches and a canteen of water. That settles the eating part of it and you can feed the marmalade to the canary and the parrot.

As to the housing facilities, we're adapted to all circumstances, being able to start a fire on the ocean bed with wet matches in thirty fathoms of water, and we have other accomplishments to our credit. One of your Pine Trees therefore would suffice as a shelter.

As far as appreciation of Art is concerned, all people who love Art and Literature don't live in Carmel, and I think you'll find a good percent of the marines are artists in one way or another, even if it's only in the knack of being able to shoot to kill with a rifle.

And then we have men who dabble in the real arts and also literature as Carmel knows. I'm a plumber by trade myself, but even with that handicap, I recently sold a scenario to the Lasky Studios in Los Angeles for $2500. Not so bad for a plumber, eh? And it is a good story, too, even if I do say it myself, and I wear a regulation hair cut (one-half inch).

Now really, my dear Pine Nut, I think you took an entirely different meaning from that which we intended and fitted it to suit your own conception of a bunch of war veterans. Luckily, we are not of that calibre and do not even feel rebuked at your Vagrant Impressions. We have a few such things ourselves and one of them is that you of Carmel are so wrapped up in yourselves that friends aren't as welcome as the flowers in May. I don't think we'd really care to perform in your annual show at the Forest Theater. We much prefer performing before the entire world as an audience, in the cause of democracy.

I really don't think any of us will ever stray into Carmel. But some day we might visit you on purpose. And when we do we'll let all of you know of it in advance, so that you can be prepared and if you will give us a chance we'd like to talk to all of you. Some of us haven't any mother, others haven't any sisters, and we're not all kids. Not by any means. And we'd like to know some of you in Carmel if it's only to call you "mother" and be just good friends. And when we come we might bring our dog to play with your cats. Really he's very gentle with all felines.

Hoping that your Vagrant Impressions are somewhat disillusioned by this letter, I am saying for all of the eligible single marines on the Idaho, "Carmel, we're all for you. May you grow and prosper and some day be on the map." And goodbye, Pine Nut, until we meet some day in the office of the Pine Cone.

JACK EMERY.

P. S. I very nearly forgot to state how much we enjoyed the Pine Cone and some of us would like to subscribe. Send me some subscription blanks and I will be glad to act as agent for your delightful little paper.

School trustee election tomorrow at the schoolhouse. Go and cast your vote. Peter Taylor is the retiring official.

Miss Nannie Steel from San Francisco, after a two months' trip in southern California, is staying with E. Chandler.

There's a brand new Studebaker taxi on Ocean avenue. "Happy" Smith is the proprietor. The service will be available at night as well as during the day.

By an error the words commending Mr. J. B. Jordan's "clever by-play with the money-bag" were omitted from Mrs. Porter's article on the Irish plays in last week's issue.

An active campaign is on this week in San Francisco to raise in the bay cities the $75,000 promised toward the fund pledged in Northern California for road work in Nevada on the Victory Highway.

City Trustee Tom Reardon left for Watsonville last Saturday to attend the meeting of the Coast Counties Master Plumber Association. During his absence Tom is not concerning himself as to who his little playmates will be on the board of trustees next month.

Mrs. Kate Hunter recently celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of her birth, at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Redmond, in Pacific Grove. Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. E. J. Sloan of Redlands are the only surviving members of a family of thirteen. Among those present at the birthday dinner were Mrs. R. G. Greeley and Mrs. F. E. Dalbey, daughters of Mrs. Hunter.

Miss Tilly Polak, who had so remarkable an exhibition of gifts and antiques in the Pine Cone office during the Christmas season, expects to open the Mission Tea Room to the public on April 16th. T. G. Fisher, who is also well known in Carmel, is her partner in this enterprise. These young people have many original ideas for making this historic place of much interest to the traveling public, as well as to local residents.

Kamuela Searle is again visiting Carmel, and expects this time to stay indefinitely. Mr. Searle will send his completed bust of Grant Wallace to Brooklyn for casting. He has just finished a bust of Hon. Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury under McKinley. Lately one of Searle's pictures was hung in the Art Museum of Santa Fe, New Mexico. He finds the atmosphere of Carmel so stimulating that he has decided to purchase property and build his studio in this vicinity.

Purely Personal Paragraphs

Rev. D. Charles Gardner and several friends are spending the week here.

Professor George Peirce of Stanford is spending the week here with his family.

Harvey A. Russell and family are spending a month at their ranch in Madera.

Mrs. Mary B. Keepers has returned from her sojourn in Sonoma county, improved in health.

Mrs. L. H. Rask has returned from San Francisco, after a week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Lee Parker.

A week-end guest of Dr. and Mrs. Preston W. Search was Warren D. Allen, organist of Stanford University.

Honeymooners here this week: Erle Collius, '22, Stanford, and Lucile Cadwallader of Long Beach. They were married Saturday noon in the Memorial Chapel and immediately "beat it" for Carmel.

La Playa guests include Miss Lydia Peltzer Accrington, England; Mrs. E. P. Rinning and party of four, Davenport, Iowa.

R. R. Whitehead has returned to his home, "Byrdcliffe," Woodstock, N. Y. Mrs. Whitehead follows with her son when the semester ends at the University of California.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Ward of Los Angeles have a family party of fifteen with friends at La Playa, among whom are Dr. and Mrs. Wallace I. Terry, son and daughter.

Though home from Hawaii for several days, it will be many weeks before Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Beardsley greet all their friends here and exhaust their wondrous tales of the islands.

The Pine Cone can handle that job of printing for you at the right price.
